TARO FLOURISHES AGAIN

Pest Has Disappeared And Good Crops Are Now Assured.

Soil Had Been Impoverished—Use of Fertilizer in the Patches is Something New—Provided by Dr. Averdam.

District Magistrate W. Luther Wilcox, in addition to being the best Hawaiian interpreter, a member of the bar and a regular Solomon in dealing out even handed justice day by day and in and out of season to all comers, is the leading taro farmer and poi manufacturer of the land. He has extensive fields and a factory or foundry in Kalihi and when pan with his duties as a shining light of the bench, journeys to the suburb and personally superintends affairs of the estate.

Judge Wilcox, as remarked in this paper yesterday, gives the information that the prospects for good and steady crops of the tuber making the chief food supply of the natives and favored by a large proportion of the foreigners, is better than for many years past. The District Magistrate is one of the first farmers to recognize the force and timeliness of the suggestion of the agricultural scientists employed by the government, the planters and private corporations, that taro lands should receive fertilizers the same as soil used for cane. Dr. Averdam, who is in charge of the works of the Pacific Guano and Fertilizer Company made a series of investigations some months ago at the time Dr. Walter Maxwell and Prof. Albert Koebele were working upon the discovery that a vegetable blight or an insect had visited the taro patches. Dr. Maxwell said at once that the chief trouble was impoverishment of the soil by constant use, no intervals for rest or recuperation having been allowed. It was mentioned, among other points that but for the act of surface water naturally doing some fertilizing, the earth would have failed long ago to respond. Prof. Koebele hunted out the noxious insect and placed an enemy at work, but the "counter irritant" was slow.

Dr. Averdam went at the problem in dead earnest and in a short time had made up a fertilizer which he recommended and which has been used with such result that, according to Judge Wilcox in many patches the yield of taro has been doubled. Judge Wilcox says that he has used the common fertilizers of various sorts in connection with that provided by Dr. Averdam and that results have been noted at once. The work of Dr. Averdam in this connection has been of signal service to the country. At one time, not many months ago, there were the gravest fears that permanent injury had been done to the taro and that years would elapse before a supply would again be available. Judge Wilcox says for one thing the farmers generally must adopt the plan of exchanging plants. He finds that this departure always shows immediate and satisfactory results.

Poi in large quantities is used at the Molokai settlements, at the prisons, in a public nature in large quantities wallians' Home and other institutions of public nature in large quantities and is in demand at hotels and restaurants. There is never enough of the taro flour to supply the orders for hospitals and sanitariums abroad. It is believed that with the use of fertilizers and improved methods of cultivation suggested by men making careful investigations taro can be produced in ample quantities to meet all requirements.
